STAGE 01

"High school internships are a win-win for both employers and students," said Robin D. Richards. "...By employing students, companies get exposure to talent early in their career journey and help support the well-being of the local community."

Hiring someone as an intern is the most effective way to evaluate his or her potential as a full-time employee.

The top three things that high school students are looking to get out of internships are new skills (92 percent), work experience (81 percent) and mentorship/ networking (72 percent)

STAGE 02
